IMPORTANT DECISION.

hesupreme Court Affirms the Constitu-finality of County, Town and City Rods issued in Aid of Rallroads.

The opinion of the Supreme Court, in the The opinion of the Supreme Court, it as case of Bushnell vs. the Town of Beloit, an nonced on Wodnesday by Judge: Cole; of Madson, and concurred in by the other Judges, settles the constitutionality of Legislatic acts authorizing counties, towns and mulcipal corporations to issue bonds in aid and suprements.

latic acts authorizing countes, towns and municipal corporations to issue bonds in aid of ailways and similar improvements.

The town of Beloit, in conformity with an act of the Legislature, by the consent of the lega voters, issued bonds in aid of the Racion and Mississippi Railroad.

The opinion of the Supreme Court in the case of Bushniel vs. the Town of Beloit, announced yesterday by Judge Cole, and concurred in by the other Judges, settles the question of the constitutionality of legislative acts authorizing counties, towns and municipal corporations, to issue bonds in aid of the Racine & mississippi R. R. These bonds were made transferrable in the usual manner. The town of Beloit resisted the payment of the interest due upon them, mainly upon the ground that the Legislature had no power, under our Constitution, to pass the act authorizing the issue of bonds for such purposes. Businell, the respondent, a holder of some of the bonds in question, brought a suit against the town for the payment of the interest.

ton, brought a suit against the town for the payment of the interest.

Judge Cole, in his opinion, sustains the decision of the Court below, affirming the power of the Legislature, under our Consti-tution, to authorize such issues of bonds, and very thoroughly discusses the whole subject in a lengthy and able argument.—Madis on

LATEST NEWS!

BY LAST NIGHT'S REPORT Congressional Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6-9 P. M. Senate not is session.
House.—Mr. Miles, of South Carolina,

Senare not a session.
House.—Mr. Miles, of South Carolina, said it was not his purpose yesterday to make a regular speech, but to suggest how harmony might be produced among the three elements, which are equally opposed to the Republican party. The colloquial debate which then took place was happy in its results. He did not consider the Democracy proper, responsible for the non-organization of the House.

He was not a party man, but an outsider; though he had been acting with the Democratic party, he was a State Rights man, and therefore, from his position, could speak irmly, gravely and independently.

The Republican candidate was particularly obnoxious to those representing Southern constituents, in consequence of his competion with Helper's book, which contained the most vile and alrocious sentiments.—Hence a concentration of Southern gentlemen against Mr. Sherman. He argued that the responsibility of non-organization rested with responsibility of non-organization rested with the auti-Lecompton Democrats. These arti-lecomptonites professing to be Democrats, who voted the Republican ticket, are in effect

Republicans.

The responsibility of organization rests on the shoulders of those who are neither Demoorats nor Republicans, because the Southern Opposition have said that they will join the opposition have said that they will join the Democrats proper, whenever it is shown that such a union will elect their candidate.

Mr. Haven wished to know whether, on the principle laid down by Mr. Miles, if those Democrats who voted for Mr. Maynard did not thereby become American not thereby become Americans.

Mr. Miles did not think so, because Mr. Maynard was outside of the American party.
Mr. Haskin supposed the National Convention determined political orthodoxy. He understood that Fillmore and Donnelson, for whom Mr. Maynard was an elector, were in the American organization.

Mr. Miles said he had voted for Mr. May pard, and would vote out-and-out American with the view of defeating the Republicans. Mr. Haskin said he voted for Mr. Gilmer, member of the American party, desiring to rganize the House.

Mr. Miles did not vote for Mr. Gilmer, and yould not under any circumstances—besides. Ir. Gilmer was not now a candidate before the House. Mr. Adrian said he yesterday spoke of the five Anti-Lecompton Democrats on this floor, who had cast their votes for speaker for one of their own number.

Mr. Hickman, asked what he meant by five Anti-Lecompton Democrats. In this he showed extreme sensitiveness and seems to think that he (Adrian) intended to insinuate think that he (Adrian) intended to insinuate that he (Hickman) was not an Anti-Lecomption Democrat. He was elected as an anti-Lecompten Democrat against an Administration or Lecompton Democrat. The Americans and Ropublicans chose to support him in preference to his competitor, and he should always feel grateful to his political opponents for the support they gave him in 1858. He differed from Mr. Buchanan on territorial policy but that was no evidence that he was not a Democrat. He conceded it was evidence that he was a Democrat because he opposed the Administration. The editor of dence that he was a Democrat because he opposed the Administration. The editor of the American Trenton said that he and Mr. Riggs had been consistent in their votes here, and that neither the Republicans nor the and that neither the heptoheans not the Democrats could have any fault to find.

Mr. Moore, of Ky, said that Mr. Adrianhad remarked that the Southern Opposition would not vote for a Democrat. If that was true, he had failed to have the acuteness to obtain the information, He was ready to make a choice between the candidates of the Complician and Democratic parties; he sho'd.

Mr. Cox, said the other day if it had not here for John. Brown's raid, the Southern opposition and republicans would have formed an alliance, he protested that such a remark was without foundation in fact. Mr. Cox exed the hope that the gentleman would not make any more argument on that point, as it would not be chivalyous to attack a man when he sould have no opportunity to reply.

The second of the second of the self-

Mr. Moore—There is no need of attacking the gentleman now. I can attack him at any time. (Laughter.)
Mr. Adrian was in favor of the election of a Speaker by a majority vote, but would vote for a plurality rule in the event that the House could be organized in no other

Mr. Clark, of N. Y., denied that the Lecomton issue is dead, as had been declared.
The Lecompton constitution was dead and deserved to die, and when it died it killed its deserved to die, and when it died it killed its authors, but the Kansas controversy is by no means ended. The English Bill, which passed both Houses and remains in full force, and the application for admission by Kansas which will be made as soon as the House organizes, we will encounter at the threshold. Before he could answer the interogatory of Mr. Winslow, he desired to be informed whether the Democratic party of the House intend to resist the application of Kansas for admission. That is a material point, which affects the action of all Anti-Lecomptonites. ecomptonites. Mr. De. Garnette replied that the purpos of those with whom he acted would be made known when that came before the House

The people of Virginia are determined in guarantees of Constitution, and reply by force to any violation of them. Mr. John Cochrane moved to adjourn. Mr. Hickman claimed the floor in order to move the plurality rule.

Mr. Houston regarded the course of Mr.

Highman in offering to amend the motions to roceed to election as unprecedented and un-proceed to election as unprecedented and un-parliamentary.

Mr. Briggs wished to define his position.—
He came there as an American opposed to the Kansas policy of the Administration. In his District he was nominated by Americans, and supported by the Rejublicans. His party was sufficient in number to return him here. No one had ever approached him to ask him to abandon any principle he had ever main-tained. He, had never said, he would not vote for a Republican; but he did say that vote for a, Republican; but he did say that, he could never support such men as Corwin and Pendleton; men of National views, but and Pendleton; men of National views, but who could endorse the sentiment of Halper's book. He believed that Mr. Sherman repudiated such sentiments, and were it not that he were restrained by his friends, the gent from Ohio would emphatically so declare. In reply to Mr. Cochrane's remarks, made the other day, hadefended, the Americans from the charges of prescription; and in support of his position, pointed to the fact that the Americans, last autumn, were the cause of electing one-half of the Deno.

sentative here from the North as the embodi-ment of American sentiments.

John Cochrene, in reply; said that there was, at the last Fall's election, a body of patriotic men, who approached half-way to the Democratic party and elected "half of the State ticket." He congratulated his colleague that thus; much was; accomplished, and he asked them to be not merely half-way Demo-orats; but altogether, such as he was. Mr. McKeon asked Mr. Cochrane whether he accepted the Buffalo platform. [Laugh-tex.] ler. ] Mr. Cochrane responded, that the purity of the Democratic party would bear even that, but let me advise the gentleman to forsake the misuries and tempests of the past and advance to where calm and better breeze blow. (Lunghter,). It had been aunounced that mountains had to be scaled, rivers passthe mountains had to escaled the red and midnight darkness penetrated by those in search of the truth. These things beset the Barn-Burners of New York, for they wandered through by ways until they reached the chiff, from which they looked down on the plains, liclow, and exclaimed "How goodly are thy tents, oh, Israel!" Mr. Stanton—What will they find at the end of the road; any pearls?

Mr. Cochrane—Ole, you will not find the fiesh pots of Egypt, you will find the Promise of Land where principles are found and where the fion and the lamb he down to gether. Rears of laughter? You will full where the non and the lamb he down together." Rooms of lunghter? You will full

Mr. Curry having been brought to the House from his sick room, Mr. Cochrane withdrew his motion to adjourn.
The House proceeded to vote for Speaker,

The Legislature. Our State Legislature meets at Madison on Weshesday next. The hope is universally expressed that the session will be a brief and busy one; and we know of no reason why the popular expectation in this regard should not be gratified. There are but few topies to engage the time and attention of the Legislature; and these few can be readily disposed of in five, or six weeks. We trust that all unnecessary tinkering with our present laws will be discouraged; and the door resolutely barred against special and local l-dislation. In the matter of expenditures and appropriations we expect to see the Legislature of serve a prudent economy. No su perfluous officers should be maintained about the Capital, and no needless expanditures incurred. In the item of printing for the State, a large retrouchment can and should be effect al. This is the reply of the Wankesha Democrut to the call for information addressed to it by the Madison Journal and Milwaukee Sentinet, and induced by its own positive statement, that some of our Bank Comptrollers have, by indirect practices, "feathered their nests to the tune of one or two hundred thousand dollars. As none but Democrats have heretofore filled the office of Bank Comptroller, and as our Wankesha contemporary was presumed to be good authority for that side of the house, we looked for a straightforward and reliable susver to our question.

"raids" every month or two. No Republican disputes the right of the Southern States to manage their domestic affairs in their own way. No Republican justifies attempts, come from what quarter they may, "to liberate Southern Staves" by force. But every Republican is opposed to and will resist the extension of Slavery, the re-opening of the Slave trade, and the extension of the Slave power in the Councils of the nation, and this precisely constitutes the dividing line between the Republican and the Democratic parties.

Mr. George R. Struntz being called, was asked a general question embracing the original claim to the Town Site, and the subsequent cocupation and improvements by the municipal claimants; to which interrogatory objections were made, on the ground that the present claimants under the Trustees could not be permitted to show improvements made yo other parties claiming adversely to the Trustees; that the Trustees must first show that they were legally elected under the Act of May 17, 1838, and that the question should be limited, in any event, to the improvements made subsequent to the date of the the Republican and the Democratic parties,

THE LILLY AND THE VIOLET. A little star broke from the sky, Upon a summer morn; It fell beside a silvery lake, A lily-oup was born,

The mists of beaven had formed at night, A tiny drop of dew, At morn that vanished from the sight And left a violet blue.

The modest violet hung its head Close where the filly grew. You be my sky the filly said; I'll be a skir to you. And sister stars kept watch by night, And heaven sent drops of dew To cheer the lily cup so white, And kiss the violets blue.

Mindion's foothing styrup for children teethers.

It has no equation earth. Expressly facilitates the brokess of teething, by softening the game, reducing inflamation—will alke all pain, and is sure to regulate the bowels. Depend upon it, mothers, to regulate the bowels. Depend upon it, mothers, to right the to your potants. Perfectly safe in all cases.

The valuable preparation is the prescription of one of the most experienced and skillful Female Physicians in New England, and has been used with never laimon spaces in multions of cases.

We believe it is the best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of bysentery and Distriction in controls, whether it arises from teething or any others. We have it arises from teething or any others. We have it arises from teething or any others. We have it arises from teething or any others.

came impromate, and the data in description in his wife and an only daughter in possession of the place. Shortly after his death, the widow took into her employment a young man from Staffordshire, of the name of John Newton, the hero of this little story, who had been strongly recommended to her by her brother; and well and faithfully did he discharge his duties as bailliff, fully justifying the praise and recommendations she received of him. He was an after stranger in that part of the country, seemed studiously to shan all acquaintance with his neighbors, and to devote himself exclusively to the interest of his employer. He never left home but to visit the neighboring faire and markets, and to attend the parish church, where his presence was regular, and his conduct devout. In short, though highly circumspect in his behavior on all occasions, he was a melancholy, reserved man; companies of ears. Mortis were, by his assiduity and skill, both prosperous and flourishing.

In this manner more than two years had passed, and the widow began to regard him more as a friend and benefactor than a servant; and was not sorry to observe her daughter's growing affection for him, which appeared to be reciprocal. One evening in November, 1821, being detained longer than usual by business, at Weishpool, Newton sstout about six o'clock, to walk home to Oakfield. It was an exceedingly dark night, and he never reached home again. The family became very anxious, and upon inquing early the next morning at Weishpool, they ascertained that he had been brought back to that town, not long after his departure from it, by two men named Parker and Pearce, who charged him with highway robbery, accompanied with violence, an offence then punishable by death. At the trial at the next assizes he was prenounced guilty, on the testimony of these two persons, which was clear, positive and consistent throughout, was sentenced to be hanged, and left for execution. He employed no counsel, and called no witness in bis defance: hut upon for execution. He employed no counsel, and called no witness in his defence; but upon being asked by the judge, in the usual form,

I have called no winesses to char-acter, and upon such evidence the jury could nonnea no other verdict. I blame them pronounce no other vertict. I hame them not. From my soul, too, I torgive those men, upon whose fulse testimony I have been convicted. But my lord, I protest most solemnly before this court, before your lordship, and above all, before that God in whose presence I must shortly appear, I am entirely guiltless of the crime for which I am about guilless of the crime for which I am about to suffer. I have produced no one to speak in my behalf. Two years have scarcely passed since I came into this country, an utter stranger. I have made no acquaintance here, keyond the household in which I have here, beyond the household in which I have been employed, and where I have endeavored to discharge my duties faithfully, honestly and well. Although I do not hope, and do not wish that my life should be spared, yet it is my devout and earnest desire that the stain of this crime may not rest upon my name. I devoutly hope that my good mistress, and her kind and excellent daughter, may yet be convinced that they have not nourished and befriended a highway robber. I have, therefore, in humble devotion, offered a prayer to Heaven, and I believe it has been a prayer to Heaven, and I believe it has been heard and accepted. I venture to assert that, if I am innocent of the crime for which I

The importunities man was condemned and The infortunate man was condemned and executed, and was buried in Montgomery churchyard. Thirty years had passed away when I saw it, and the graus had not ithen covered his grave. It is situated in a remote corner of the churchyard, far removed from all other graves. It is not a raised mound of earth, but is even with the surrounding ground, which is, for some distance, especially luxuriant, the herbage being rich and abundant. Numerons attempts have, from time to time; been made by some who are still slive, and others who have passed away, to bring grass upon that bars spot. Fresh soil has been frequently spread upon it, and seeds of various kinds have been sown, but not a blade had there ever been known to spring from them, and the soil soon became a smooth, cold, and stubborn clay. With respect to the unhappy witnesses, it appears that Parker's ancestors had once owned Oakheld, and that he had hoped, by getting ride. The unfortunate, man was condemned and: field, and that he had hoped, by getting rid of Newton, to remove the main obstacle there was to his re-possessing it, and that Pearce had, at the time of Mr. Morris' death, Pearce had, at the time of Mr. Morris' death, aspired to the hand of his daughter, in whose affections he felt he had been supplanted by poor Newton. The former soon left the neighborhood, became a drunken and dissolute man, and was ultimately killed in some limeworks, while in the act of blasting a rock. Pearce grew sullen and dispirited; his very existence seemed a burden to him, and as the old sexton of Montgomery expressed it, "the wasted away from the face of the earth."
